

GERMANY IS DIVIDED BY PEACE TALK

FURTHER REICHSTAG COMMITTEE SESSIONS DEVELOP NEW DISCUSSIONS OVER CHANGING POLICY

DENOUNCE MICHAELIS

Tageblatt States Crisis Is Only Adjourned—Majority Parties Bitter Against His Policy.

The report shows Dr. Michaelis did not change his attitude regarding the wording of his ambiguous speech on July 19, and the situation, as far as planning him down to any definite peace program, remains exactly where it was when he assumed office.

Herr Urzberger, the Centrist leader, alone declared in yesterday's committee sitting, that doubt as to the chancellor's acceptance of the principle of indemnities, but absolute acceptance of indemnities, now had been eliminated for good. All other views ranged from mild doubt and open skepticism to flat denial. Urzberger's speech, which he delivered in a splendidly defended his political integrity and good faith against pan-German machinations, by a plain and unequivocal statement, does not leave any room for doubt, annexation and conquest, which these elements attribute to him.

The Berlin Tageblatt says the crisis is only adjuvored.

Dr. Kaas, a radical member of the Reichstag, declared yesterday that the chancellor had introduced elements of doubt and uncertainty into the interpretation of the Reichstag's resolution. He said that conservatives to claim him as their own man without a word of protest, and that he had done nothing to shake off the assertion of the pan-Germans and the radicals to take ground in politics.

What the conservatives and pan-Germans think of the present situation is revealed plainly in the Berlin Tageszeitung and the Berliner Tageblatt. The latter says the chancellor is unjustified in the opinion of the writer.

The Kaiser's first report to the Berlin

Chancellor Michaelis visited headquarters and presented Emperor William with a report. Some Berlin newspapers say the visit is connected with Alsace-Lorraine.

TAKE SINGLE MEN

Washington, Aug. 25.—President Wilson has written Secretary Baker expressing a view that the drafting of married men who are heads of families should be carefully examined.

The president is empowered to make the regulations under which the draft law will be carried out, so the effect of his letter to Secretary Baker is to throw his influence toward a more liberal policy for exemption of married men than heretofore, have been expressed by the provost marshal general's office.

tation now placed on the law by army officers administering it. They contend that a history of the law shows congress voted down amendments to exempt married men, they have no legal authority to exempt them except on grounds of dependency alone.

President Wilson's view as forecasted in his recent letter to Senator Weeks, the taking of married men and heads of families should be avoided, at least on the first draft.

The president's letter probably will

The term astrakhan is used for coarser grades of Persian lamb fur, which is made from the pelts of a kind of black sheep. The skins are mostly imported from Bokhara. They are from still born lambs or from lambs killed before they are a week old. The curl of the wool is lost as the lambs grow older, and a tight curl covering the skin uniformly is what the furriers seek. The skins are variable in quality, and the traders grade them according to the closeness and particular character of the curl as well as the fur's lustre. Dyeing is used to give an even coloring and make the skins more lustrous.—New York Sun.

PESSIMISTIC OVER COAL SITUATION

LOCAL COAL DEALERS DO NOT FIGURE ON DECREASE IN FUEL PRICES.

SHIPPING A PROBLEM

This Appears to Be the Main Obstacle in Securing Material Benefit to the Consumer.

Despite the fact that President Wilson has fixed the price of both bituminous and anthracite coal at the mines and has been informed that even beyond that the federal government will see to it that this coal supply reaches the ultimate consumer, local coal dealers are pessimistic over the present situation. They are evidently prone to believe that even the influence of the federal government, urged on by Governor Philipp and the state council of defense, can not create the viable supply in and about Janesville and give all consumers plenty of fuel at a moderate price.

Everyone realizes there is a shortage at present in both grades of fuel. This has long been known, but if the promises of the federal government count for anything we may expect there will be a good supply of fuel. It is not known, but if the promises of the federal government count for anything we may expect there will be a good supply of fuel. It is not known, but if the promises of the federal government count for anything we may expect there will be a good supply of fuel.

An investigation of the local coal situation brings forth the suggestion: "Burn Illinois soft coal," or, "Use the soft coal of Illinois." The general warning handed out by the Janesville coal dealers to "Mr. Coal Burner." The government regulation of coal prices as President Wilson has fixed and held in effect, is something that will have little effect on hard coal prices, according to the local dealers. In fact one dealer estimated that the new scale of prices on hard coal will be even higher than what he is now selling hard coal for.

The general consensus of opinion is that there will be a decrease of about one dollar in the price of soft coal. This dealer, Janesville is near to the Illinois coal fields where a greater part of the soft coal used in the west is mined. Mostly all the coal that the local coalmen have on hand at present is soft coal. The local men expect that under the government supervision that the expected drop will take place immediately, but are awaiting action on the part of the government. They are also in doubt as to how their present supply of coal on hand now is to be disposed of. Some of the dealers have a supply of soft coal on hand, but under conditions would last several months.

The hard coal that is used in the western states is mined largely in Pennsylvania and the east of coal. They are also in doubt as to how their present supply of coal on hand now is to be disposed of. Some of the dealers have a supply of soft coal on hand, but under conditions would last several months.

One dealer says that last year the coal that was sent him by rail was as much as the coal that came via rail. This same dealer says that the Milwaukee coal firm that usually supplied him with coal was unable to do so this winter because the boats that usually carried the coal from the east to the west had been commandeered by the government. This same dealer says that the Milwaukee coal firm that usually supplied him with coal was unable to do so this winter because the boats that usually carried the coal from the east to the west had been commandeered by the government.

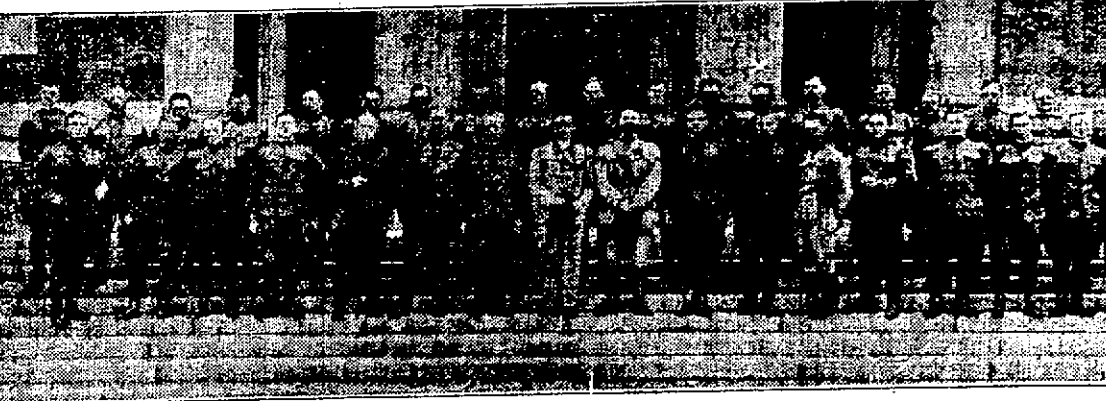

Governor Philipp in a recent statement said there is only ten per cent of the hard coal on the docks this year that there was last year. In these times of war orders are being placed for the coal that is needed for the coal transportation facilities have suffered as a result. The big question on the hard coal matter is transportation. If the government can't supply the west with hard coal, Mr. Coal Burner will have something else besides Illinois soft coal to feed his greedy furnace. The government can't supply the west with hard coal, Mr. Coal Burner will have something else besides Illinois soft coal to feed his greedy furnace.

Coal is also going to be scarce. The coal that is needed for the coal transportation facilities have suffered as a result. The big question on the hard coal matter is transportation. The government can't supply the west with hard coal, Mr. Coal Burner will have something else besides Illinois soft coal to feed his greedy furnace.

Newspaper readers delight in gazing at cartoons depicting a coal dealer leaning back in a ninety-cylinder car smoking a "Perfetto" like a bloated millionaire with gorgeous fur coats and negro chauffeurs in liveries at the wheel of the "people's common enemy" equipage. "Some picture" you say. But here's another picture with the same man in the lead, but a different atmosphere about the picture. The State Council of Defense is going over the books of one of the local coal dealers found that on two railcars this dealer had not charged enough. The Council of Defense is an organization that is working for the interests of lower prices and war time conservation and the above was the first of one phase of the coal situation.

Local dealers welcome government control as a whole, but they all agree that the price of coal at the mines is not the big difficulty, but the question of transportation to the consumer. ## GROUP OF OFFICERS TRAINING AT WAR COLLEGE

In the above illustration is shown the group of officers selected from the entire United States for a period of intensive training in trench warfare under the direction of officers from our allies' armies, who have been sent to this country to aid in training America's army to be sent overseas. The group consists of Captain E. N. Caldwell, in command of Company M, and the one man chosen from the entire Wisconsin-Michigan division to take the intensive training at the war college at Washington. One commissioned officer was chosen from each of the thirty-two divisions in the country for the work. This covered a period of two weeks of the hardest kind of work; classes continued from half past seven in the morning until half past ten at night, with but brief intermission for meals. The work, though under the general supervision of the United States officers in charge of the war college, was conducted by the most expert Canadian, British and French officers, men who have seen months of trench warfare at the front and who were admirably fitted for teaching the recently developed battle tactics to their American allies.

The two French officers who gave most of the work are shown in the center of the picture in the light grey uniforms, while immediately to their right (to the left of the picture) are the American officers in charge of the work.

The various officers have now returned to their commands, and upon the mobilization of the troops in the permanent camps will conduct special schools for the officers of the various divisions for a period of about sixteen weeks before the men are sent to France.

The photograph was taken on the steps of the war college immediately following a lecture by one of the French officers.

FRIDAY'S MARKETS.
Chicago, Aug. 25.—Another $1 decline in hog values yesterday carried the average $2.50 below Tuesday, being the sharpest decline in trade history for a like period. Receipts of hogs were sold early on speculative account at $18, but $17.75 was top to the regulars. Armour's drove cost $18.25, against $17.85 Thursday and $18.74 high day of the week.

Demoralization characterized all the outside markets for swine yesterday. Indianapolis declined $1.50 and most other points 50¢@$. Buffalo report best at $18.40 and Sioux City at $17. Notwithstanding the recent high break in hog values, cash pork products sold at 15¢ to 16¢ high, and at high prices on record. Lard made 25¢ and tallow 20¢. Offerings were very small. Receipts for today are estimated at 1,000 head of hogs, against 6,000 sheep, against 936 cattle, 11,500 hogs and 1,215 sheep a year ago. Average price of hogs at Chicago was $16.60, against $17.80, highest day on record, $18.15 a week ago, $10.70 a year ago and $7.23 two years ago.

There was not much action to the cattle trade yesterday because of the plain quality of most offerings. Prices were steady on steers and, butcher stock. Cows and calves were a level, with best making $16. Best steers available sold at $12.25 in the native division, but prime corn-fed lots are still quotable to $15.50. Quotations: Choice to fancy steers, $14.50@15.50. Poor to good steers, $11.00@14.30. Fat cows and heifers, $7.50@13.00. Cows and calves, $6.00@10.00. Native bulls and stags, $6.25@10.30. Feeding cattle, 600 to 1,100 lbs., $6.25@9.25. Poor to fancy veal calves, 100@16.00.

After an uneven decline at the start yesterday the market settled down to a $1 lower basis, as compared with the average Thursday. There were extreme instances of more decline, but once prices hit the bottom there was a little more action to the trade. Shippers bought with a little more freedom, taking more offerings than any day since Monday, and the stale stock was reduced. Quotations: Bulk of sales, $16.25@17.25. Heavy butchers and ship-ping, $16.85@17.75. Light butchers, 190 to 230 lbs., $16.75@17.60. Light bacon, 145 to 190 lbs., $15.75@17.35.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Don't you mind about the triumphs,
Don't you worry after fame;
Don't you grieve about succeeding,
Let the future guard your name.
All the best in life's the simplest,
Love will find its way to you;
Just be glad that you are living,
And keep cheering someone on.
Let your neighbors have the blossoms,
Let your comrades wear the crown,
Never mind the little setbacks,
Nor the blows that knock you down.
You'll be glad when they're forgotten,
You'll be glad with youth and dawn,
If you just keep your troubles,
And keep cheering someone on.
There's a lot of sorrow round you,
And a lot of pain and tears;
Lots of heartaches and of worry,
Through the shadows of the years,
And the world needs more than triumphs;
More than all the swords we've drawn,
It is hungering for the fellow Who keeps cheering others on.
Baltimore Sun.

who is spending much time in England. He says that a wonderful change has occurred in the spirit of the people, during the past two years.
Where formerly caste and class distinction prevailed, now a common brotherhood exists. Universal sorrow and suffering has cemented the hearts of the people and they are working as one man for success in the great struggle, in which the nation is engaged.

He suggests that more of this spirit is needed in America, and believes that when we are fully awake to the situation, and realize that this is our war, as it is the war of Great Britain and her allies, that a wave of human interest will sweep over the country and the common brotherhood of man will become a fact of lasting import.
There are more people today who need "cheering on," than at any time in history. A gentleman who just returned from Canada, said that in the little village of a dozen families where he visited, three homes were in mourning because of the war. In the countries of the old world not a home has escaped, and in many places, suffering and privation, make sorrow more intense.

The cheerful word and genial smile are in demand today, as never before.
They are the least that any of us can contribute, and they cost so little that all of us can afford to invest. Shall we do our share to make people happier?

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOUTON

THE NEW ARMY
Soon off to camp the lads will tramp
To train for war's ferocity,
That they may grace a soldier's place.

With valor and precocity: Soon they will learn to march and turn

And counter-march and tote a lot,
To need the Taps and that perhaps,
At first will get their coat a lot.

They'll dig and plow and wipe the brow
In manner meritorious, They'll, in haste, "if that's a taste

Of war it's hardly glorious!"
They'll dine on greens and pork and beans

With appetites gigantic, too,
And all of it will make 'em fit
And make the Kaiser frantic, too.

The stunts they'll do are many, too,
And quite a large variety, They'll drill and wheel until they feel

A feeling of satiety, Ver though it aches such training makes

The proper sort of stuff of them, They'll save the day—and by the time

There's going to be enough of them!

squeak except that he finds it easier to squeak than to roar or whine.

Very often a mouse squeaks merely because he is in high spirits.
Motorists seldom squeak except when they are settling their garage bills.

The motorist's interest in squeaks is in listening for them.
When a motorist is motoring he is not happy unless he is listening for squeaks. Then he wonders what they are.

U. S. Now Has Armed Land Forces
Amounting Over 710,000 and Sea
Forces of More Than 253,000.

By Ellis B. Usher.

Milwaukee, Aug. 25.—The important events of these days all hinge on some phase of the great war drama for its part in which this country is so busily making ready. This week a speech from former ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard, to an audience that had secured seats in advance to fill our great auditorium to its limits was upset by a sudden illness of the gentleman in Chicago.
Mr. Gerard in his speeches and writings has been making a crushing answer to our enemies and their are continually asking—"Why is the United States in this war?" Mr. Gerard speaks and writes with the authority of man who knows all the secrets of Germany's attitude toward us in all the trying days before the president was forced to acknowledge that no pacific means were open to the settlement of German outrages upon American life, property and rights.

Root Hopeful for Russia.

In this connection it is well to quote a few words uttered to the United States Club in New York, N. Y., Ellis Root, who recently returned from Russia, where he was sent by this government as the head of a special commission to the Russian republic. Of Russian prospects Mr.
Root spoke hopefully, but of certain things in this country he spoke in a less heartening tone. There is a brief quotation from his words:

"There are men walking about the streets of this city tonight who ought to be taken out at sunrise tomorrow and shot for treason. They are pretending to be for their country and they are lying in every way and in every word. They are deceiving themselves with the idea of pretended patriotism, and if we are to be competent and fit for our liberty, we will find them out and get at them."

"There are some newspapers published in this city every day the editors of which deserve conviction and execution for treason. And sooner or later they will get it."

Mr. Root is not merely one of the ablest, most eminent and most patriotic of American citizens, he is one of our greatest law-abiding activist. He is a man who has been accustomed to use words with heat and with accuracy and deliberation. This utterance expressed, and was intended to express, Mr. Root's deep sense of the mischief being done by the of liberty in Russia, by reports, businessly related there by German agents, of the pro-German activities in our congress and among our people, everywhere and nowhere more actively than in Wisconsin; activities against the draft, in L. W. W. strikes and in pro-German newspapers and the light in the country.

The movement to organize a Loyalty Legion, as it has been tentatively named, took its second step here, on Wednesday, when most of the members of the provisionally committee met and appointed an executive committee, as follows:
First district, C. C. Simmons, Kenosha; Second, E. B. Usher, Sheboygan; Third, Richard Lloyd Jones, Madison; Fourth, Winfield B. Gaylord, Milwaukee; Fifth, William A.
Hayes, Milwaukee; Sixth, Thomas McConnell, Manitowish; Seventh,
McConnell, La Crosse; Eighth, A. F.
Woodson, Wausau; Ninth, Thomas B.
Reid, Appleton; Tenth, Ben Carter, Menomonie; Eleventh, A. W.
Santborn, Shawano. The executive committee will meet in Milwaukee in a few days to set the time and place for a state meeting, which will probably be held in September. A constitution will be reported but not acted upon.
The convention will be an important one if it is a mass convention and the will make it clear that no German sympathizer and no political schemer can find comfort in it.

With the mobilization of the Fifth regiment at Camp Douglas, last Saturday and of the Sixth at Sheboygan, Wisconsin camp contains something like 15,000 armed men. Such a number of troops was never before assembled in this state. It is a great thing for our people to realize that the gathering together of so many troops means great forethought and that the details which have been so well carried out by Wisconsin's adjutant general have been executed under direction of the military arm of the government at Washington, and that the Wisconsin men, under the command of the greatest army ever raised on this hemisphere. The magnitude of this mobilization is stupendous in comparison with all previous undertakings.

America's Fighting Men.

There are so many fragmentary accounts published that it is easy to lose the great aggregate. I am surprised, as I have no doubt some of my readers may be, to learn from the Official Bulletin that the United States now has armed land forces numbering over 710,000 and sea forces amounting to 253,000. Every man of them a volunteer. When the new national forces are mobilized next month, it will add 857,000 more, and the grand total will be over 1,560,000 men in the country's service. It is safe to say that by New Year's day there will be more than 2,000,000 armed men mustered under the Stars and Stripes, a good proportion of them in France and a considerable number on the firing line. To grasp the measure of this great undertaking, the work of transporting men and war materials is a work requiring great organization and of a magnitude that will illustrate the great task of preparing the country for war. Some figures given by the railway war department, on just one feature of this work, the 16 cantonments building for the new army and the 16 National Guard encampments are interesting.
The materials for construction of these cantonments require 40,000 freight cars and 90,000 freight cars. The camps will need about 40,000 cars more. One hundred thousand cars sounds large, and it is. It means the equivalent of solid trains of 100 freight cars each which would reach from Milwaukee to Boston. These 16 cantonments will each house a population of 40,000.
The railroads must also provision all these camps. Trees felled Saturday in Mississippi, put into kiln-dried lumber and loaded on freight cars, were delivered on the site of the Louisville cantonment on Wednesday morning. Within a single week the trees of Mississippi were transported to the new cantonment buildings.
The railroads expect to move 1,030,

FIRST AMERICANS FOR AMERICA FIRST

Chief Three Bears.

The U. S. war department is considering the suggestion of a noted Blackfoot Indian warrior, Chief Three Bears of the Glacier National Park reservation, that Uncle Sam release all of its Mexican border army for service in France, by conscripting 30,000 Indians from the "hundred and one tribes" now upon reservations scattered over the west.

900 troops before Oct. 1. Most of these troops they will have already moved once to their state camps. All the uniforms, clothing, arms, ammunition and supplies, including food for these men, will also be moved by rail. This stupendous work is being done with so little confusion and so well that the public generally has no conception of its magnitude. And this is only one phase of the great make-ready undertaking. As an exhibition of American speed and capacity it has never before been approached.
We are doing, almost in days, what England took many months to accomplish, and Germany spent a generation in such preparation. And it is not all accident. Our government was ready with the plans and many of the preparations had been made before the war began. It is a very job, and should be understood and appreciated. At this stage of the civil war Wisconsin had two regiments of cavalry, and officers equally incompetent leaving for the front, and one other 100 or regiment reorganizing. We had three regiments in the field in December, 1861, eight months after war began, yet this was the world's greatest war prior to this one.

A Word to Agitators.

In considering the magnitude of our existing army there are some facts that seem to have been missed by the too active portion of our citizens who are anti-American. One is that the National Guardmen are not mobilized in the armories about the time of the registration for the draft. Now all guardmen in the country, over 310,000 men, have been sworn into the National Guard. They are all mobilized every armed military unit in the country is today under command of the President of the United States, who under the constitution is the commander-in-chief of all armed forces of this country, on land and sea. There may have been some calculation in the conjunction of these several facts, and it is a very great something in them to demand the reflection of agitators and newspaper that are doing what they can to urge brave men than themselves to resist the draft. They are all to have to deal with the military arm of the government and if they think it a safe thing to trifle with in war time, they will learn a very lasting advantage. They can talk as they like about the unconstitutionality of the draft, so long as it pleases the authorities to leave them alone.
The constitution makes the president commander-in-chief and they can be sure that his commands will be obeyed.

Wisconsin has been in evidence again in the Senate, this week. It is "Bob's" same sorry "stunt." The same pro-German performance. The Coal Age had a poem last week about the "Stork" in describing a bumbug in the following interesting and original way:

"A water spider on a pond is most exceptionally good at doing acrobatic stunts and being everywhere at once. It ambulates with wondrous grace and dances all around the place; it does a gliding, wanton glide that sends theipples spreading wide; it curvets, capers, spins and whisks;
in fancy whirls and turns it frisks; but yet it never gets beyond the narrow limits of the pond."

BOARDS OF DEFENSE TO HELP MOBILIZE NEW NATIONAL ARMY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—Gov. Philipp in a letter to the state council of defense suggests that every honorable citizen who is able to do so enter the army service on Sept. 5. The governor asks that the local councils of defense aid in securing the transportation for the men.
Gov. Philipp's letter follows:
To the State Council of Defense: I have just read over with care the mobilization regulations for the national army prescribed by the president of the United States. The manner of handling the first group of the national army on September fifth is outlined in detail in these regulations, a copy of which I am enclosing. The management of these details is placed in the hands of the local boards of exemption.

The members of these boards have given unreservedly of their time and energy on week days and Sundays, in daytime and at night. They will be under very great pressure during the next two weeks to complete the task of selection and they will not have time to make the detailed arrangements for the mobilization. They would welcome, I believe, co-operation in carrying to its conclusion the great work they have undertaken and done so well.

The various county councils of defense can do a very great patriotic service in aiding the local boards under the direction of the chairman of said boards, to make the arrangements for transportation, subsistence and lodging of the selected men in accordance with the mobilization regulations.
Besides the persons who are actually called into the service of the United States the local boards are to notify five alternates, but provision for the subsistence and lodging of these alternates is not made. I trust that provision will be made without fail for these alternates through the county council of defense.

With you, gentlemen, please call to the attention of the county councils of defense the opportunity for a distinct public and patriotic service which the mobilization of the national army offers. I am sure that all you will have to do is to point to the opportunity in order to have the usual vigorous and energetic response from the citizens of the county. The organization of its national army.

May I suggest, too, that where pairs at home for the soldiers are not to be provided for through other local agency, that the county council of defense undertake this finely considerable service.

May I suggest, too, that arrangements be made to accord a special men every honor and every mark of appreciation while they are under the direction of the local board and that their departure shall be fittingly celebrated.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) E. L. Philipp, Governor.

Edgerton Farm Hand Badly Injured
Friday Night By Motorists Who Speed Away After Accident.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Aug. 25.—Chris Johnson, a farm hand employed on the farm of Albert Hanson, three miles north of this city, was struck by an automobile at ten o'clock Friday evening on the highway a mile and a half out of town. The motorists did not stop to see how badly he was injured, although Johnson claims to have heard the woman in the car exclaim as he was knocked over.

Johnson suffered a fractured leg and foot and lay beside the road until early this morning, when he was found in an unconscious condition by tenants on the F. Moore farm. Physicians were summoned and the injured man was taken to Janesville for treatment at Mercy Hospital.

Johnson is unable to give any kind of a description of the car, but states that its occupants were a man and a woman. Johnson had been to Edgerton to spend the evening, and was returning home when the accident occurred. A liberal reward is being offered here for any information as to the identity of the guilty parties in the automobile.

DECIDE TO PLACE IRON FIRE ESCAPE ON LIBRARY HALL

Decision Comes as Result of Conference Between Mayor Fathers and Judge Field.

Placing of a fire escape on Library Hall was agreed upon this morning at a conference between Mayor Fathers and Judge Charles Field, president of the library board, in whose hands the control and jurisdiction of the building is placed by statute. Though an investigation by the industrial commission last year revealed the fact that the fire risk in the hall was too great without the installation of a fire escape, the only way to be used for assemblies of more than one hundred people.

Responsibility for bringing the matter to a head at this time rests to a large extent on the Apollo club, which is now making plans for the concert of the coming season. Directors of the musical organization were confronted with the intimation that the hall would be closed for the grounds that they brought in more than one hundred people, and therefore made the installation of a fire escape necessary to meet the orders. The library board felt some hesitancy over expending the very considerable sum necessary to provide the fire escape, when in their belief the musical club was the only organization which would be likely to fill the hall to capacity.

The directors of the club, however, felt that in their organization the city at large and that as only the Apollo was made to secure sufficient funds to pay their artists, and that, therefore, they were of a semi-public nature and should be made available for the use of the hall, even though it threw some additional expense on the library board. Their feeling, they believed, to be further justified by the fact that a fire escape the hall would be made available for many other societies and clubs, and would provide a most admirable place for women's conventions of various kinds, entertainment of a public nature, large exhibitions, and the like.

With this in mind the directors put the proposition up to Mayor Fathers, with the request that he use his influence in bringing about the needed improvements. The mayor at once called a conference with Judge Field to whom he recommended the installation of a fire escape. The fact further developed that, contrary to the belief of some, there had been no antagonism toward the Apollo club on the part of the board, but that the library board had been reluctant in granting the use of the hall was entirely due to the expense of the fire escape.

In the belief of Mayor Fathers, however, the expense of this improvement is small in comparison with the added usefulness of the hall, which automatically becomes available for many purposes before denied it. This means his official sanction and order requiring the placing of the fire escape.

Estimates will be prepared at once, and every effort made to have the fire escape in place early this fall; predictions as to the time of completion are impossible with the scarcity of iron and steel for the past few months. The work will be rushed as far as possible. The installation of a hand-rail on the staircase, as recommended by the industrial commission, is also being undertaken. It is likely that the fire escape will be placed on the west wall of the building, where there are already windows, and where it would be more available to the rest of the floor should the two other rooms be finished for use.

EXONERATED HANDY OF ASSAULT CHARGE

Judge Maxfield Decides Officer Did Not Use Unnecessary Force in the Charge of His Duty.

Judge H. Maxfield has exonerated Officer Charles Handy of the local police force, from the charges of assault and battery preferred against him by Charles Damerow, who reached the examination Friday afternoon was that the officer used no more force than was necessary in the discharge of his duty, and that the officer handled him with unnecessary roughness. Handy ordered Damerow out of the hot sun and Damerow attempted to strike him.

START TO ISSUE ORDERS REQUIRING TREE TRIMMING

First steps were taken in the city's campaign to make property owners obey the tree trimming ordinance, this morning, when a notice was issued requiring a property owner to cut trees on his holdings to comply with the provisions of the ordinance within the next ten days. If the work is not done within that time, the city will do it and assess the costs against him. This is the first of these notices to be issued, but according to the city officials more are likely to follow if property owners do not comply at once with their requests.

The regulations state that the branches of trees on streets must be trimmed so as not to be lower than ten feet above the ground at the trunk and eighteen feet at the center of the roadway. Notices to this effect were published some time ago, and the request made of residents, but there are still many who have not complied with the order. The city has sent out a number of men to trim trees on its property, and is now in a position to take over the work neglected by recalcitrant owners if the need arises.

NO EXEMPTIONS YET FROM HIGHER BOARD

District Board May Not Issue Lists Until Orders For Mobilization Are Prepared.

As yet no word has been received from Madison regarding the findings of the district board on the claims for exemption from military service by the local draft board. It is not believed that the names of those claims for exemption have been granted until the orders for mobilization of the first group of men for training at the training camp have been issued.

Those who have passed through the hands of the local board are now totally beyond its jurisdiction until they are mobilized. All claims for exemption, either appealed claims or on conscription, agricultural ground, are sent directly to the higher board by the claimants.

No Further Orders. No further orders regarding mobilization have been received by the district authorities here, so far as is known the first allotment of men will be assembled on the fifth of September. This first group of men will be certified for service on this first call, and in this district will be between forty-five and fifty men. Another group of men will be called on the fifteenth of next month, and the remainder at stated periods.

It is now the opinion of county officials that another call will not have to be made; 243 men have passed the local board, and though there are many of these who are filing claims with the higher board, ninety of these can be lost and the district's quota of 150 will be met.

The remainder of the notices of discharge or certification for military service, were prepared today and sent to the 200 men who were last called on. It is likely that many of these will not reach their destination until Monday, but every man who has been examined either has or will be called on the first call.

To Act On Further Claims. The local board at a session next Wednesday will act on some twenty or more claims for exemption. The men were examined at the last call, who had not filed their supporting affidavits at the time of the board's adjournment several days ago. The time limit for filing their affidavits had not expired so it was necessary for the board to adjourn and give the men the full time limit for presenting their cases. Notices to these men will, of course, be mailed before the next call. Claims have been passed upon by the local board next week.

ART LEAGUE PICNIC ENJOYED ON FRIDAY

Thirty-Five Members Attend Pleasant Outing Held at Yost Park—Discusses Plans For Year.

A very enjoyable picnic was held at Yost park yesterday by the Art League, about thirty-five being in attendance. The use of the ice cream pavilion was secured for the day, and it made a very convenient place in which to serve the luncheon, with its cozy arrangements of tables and chairs.

The delicious picnic dinner was served by Mrs. Charles Sanborn, Mrs. F. A. Taylor, Mrs. H. Murdock, Mrs. T. O. Howe, and Mrs. E. McGowan. In the afternoon there was an informal discussion of plans for the next year's work, which was to include current events and discussion of art topics at each meeting, beside the regular study of the year. Also plans were formulated whereby a Red Cross committee would provide a supply of hand sewing, to keep the members busy during each meeting. At the picnic yesterday nearly everyone was engaged in hemming on the Red Cross napkins, or in knitting the various articles for the Navy League.

Mrs. Leon Minor of Los Angeles was a guest at the picnic, as well as Miss Della Dearborn of Indianapolis. The latter is a teacher in the public schools of that city, and is visiting at the home of Mrs. A. C. Campbell and Mrs. Sabra Parker. Mrs. Minor will be remembered as Miss Louise Wilbur, a former resident of Janesville.

Double Photography.
Those of you who have seen films in which a player taking two parts appears in those parts at one and the same time, in the same scene, will wonder how it is done. The player, of course, does not play both parts at once. He or she plays one part, and while doing so the camera operator by one of his many tricks keeps blank that portion of the film on which the player is photographed taking his other part. When that part in which he has played is finished the operator winds back the film to the beginning, and the unexposed blank portion is exposed for the first time, while the other part is covered. Then the player takes the other part.—Pearson's.

U. S. TO TAKE OVER LAKE BO

JACK BESSEY, WHO HEADS HIS OWN STOCK COMPANY AT MYERS THEATRE ALL NEXT WEEK.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

After Miriam Cooper had finished her elementary education in Baltimore, where she was born, she went to study in the New York Art School. She wanted to become a miniature painter.

There she was associated with girls who had a good deal more spending money than she, and at times this became a little irksome to the ambitious southern girl.

She loved a good time. Also, it was embarrassing not to be able to "read" generously in return. So she made up her mind she would learn how to earn some money in vacation.

One of the girls in the school suggested she try motion pictures, and, with the favor of adventure, Miss Cooper went to the studios. She was accepted as an extra. The first two weeks she earned $20—and her mother knew nothing about it.

Since then Miss Cooper has had prominent roles in some of the largest films of the world, namely, "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," and "The Honor System." She is now starring in the latest screen production being "The Silent Lie."

Miss Cooper is essentially an outdoors girl. The minute she is free from the studio, she is in the saddle, following the mountain trails and the roads through the canyons about Los Angeles.

Nobody will tell us how old she is, but looking up a lot of dates we are five or somewhere between twenty and twenty-one. She has brown eyes and dark hair.

SHE'S OFF "VAMP" ROLES

Clara Kimball Young is not going to play wayward woman on the screen any more. Although she claims "vamps" are better acting roles, she thinks that there are plays and plays that give equally strong parts and at the same time more womanly.

"I don't want to play the name-dropping, income roles that are so common, but I want to play parts that will be more pleasing to my friends throughout the country."

In addition to this statement, Miss Young said that letters from film fans were the real cause for the change in her policy. Her first play will, no longer, be a typical Clara Kimball Young picture.

Miriam Cooper

It is Subermann's "Manda." Of a very different nature is "Sherlock Kavey," which will be one of her forthcoming productions.

Temperance Talks

(By Temperance Educational League) Basic Facts Underlying Movement for Prohibition.

One sometimes hears the remark that only men who can exercise self-control have a right to drink intoxicating liquor. Those who make that statement overlook two important facts. First, the man who is a poison which when taken into the system impairs one's health and reduces his worth and strength. In the second place, no man lives entirely unto himself. His family, society and the state have an interest in him, and this we think is greater than most men realize. To a certain extent every man belongs not only to himself but to his family and the community in which he lives. For these reasons no man has a right to injure himself or impair his health or usefulness. In speaking upon this subject, Irving Fisher, Professor of Economics at Yale university recently made the following statement, which we quote: "The basic fact underlying the movement for prohibition is that alcohol has been shown to be a poison. This has been proved for years; it has only been proved in the last two years by the careful study by Dr. Benedict of Harvard university of the effect of minute quantities of alcohol."

"The theory that alcohol in small quantities is beneficial has been forever exploded by exact scientific tests. The use of even one or two glasses of beer daily has been proved to slow down the entire nervous system, and the myth that alcohol is a stimulant is no longer accepted by the medical profession. Alcohol is not a stimulant. It is a narcotic poison."

"That wipes out the non-prohibition argument that people who exercise self-control have a right to drink. They have no such right, since drink even in small quantities, is poison. We have compulsory education; we have just adopted compulsory draft. Prohibition is a compulsion of almost as great a value to a nation at war as compulsory registration. When 80% of our square miles and 60% of our population, our national capital and our army and navy are dry it seems the logical thing to do is to make it nation wide."

It will be better to take her. We could get euros, but Judge Warner agrees with me that the thing had better be done quietly and without making too much of a stir in town. "All right," said the man of the law. "It's that all?"
"No, not quite all. The first of the warrants is to be served here in Brewster upon Mr. Crawford Stanton. Your deputy will probably find him at the Hopium House. Here is the paper. It is a bench warrant of commitment on a charge of conspiracy, and Stanton is to be locked up. Also, you are to see to it that your jail telephone is out of order, so that Stanton won't be able to make any attempt to get a hearing and bail before tomorrow. "That part of it is mighty risky," said Harding. "Does the judge know about that, too?"
"He does; and for the ends of pure justice, he consents with me—though, of course, he couldn't give a munitive order."
The sheriff turned to his jail deputy, who had descended from the cumbler seat in the rear.
"You've heard the dope, Jimmie," he said shortly. "Go and get His Nobs and lock him up. And if he wants to be peeling 'frip' and sending for his lawyer or somebody, why, the telephone's takin' a lay-off, savvy?"
The deputy nodded and turned upon his heel, stuffing the warrant for Stanton's arrest into his pocket as he went. Smith swung up beside Starbuck, saying: "In a couple of hours, then, Mr. Harding, somewhere near the bridge approach on the other side of the river."
Starbuck had started the motor and was bending forward to adjust the oil feed when the sheriff left them.
"You seem to have made a ten-stroke with Judge Warner," the ex-cop remarked, replacing the flashlight in its seat pocket.
"Judge Warner is a man in every inch of him; but there is something behind this night's work that I don't quite understand," was the quick re-

"I don't know; unless someone in Stanton's outfit has wretched. Shaw might have done it. He has been to Rob Stillings, and Stillings says he is sore at Stanton for some reason. Shaw was trying to get Stillings to agree to drop the railroad case against him, and Bob says he made some vague promise of help in the High Line business if the railroad people would agree not to prosecute."

"There is a screw loose somewhere. I know by the way Judge Warner took hold. When I proposed to swear out the warrant for Stanton's arrest, he said, 'I can't understand, Mr. Smith, why you haven't done this before,' and he sat down and filled out the blank. But we can let that go for the present. How are you going to get me across the river without taking me through the heart of the town and giving the Brewster police a shy at me?"

Starbuck's answer was wordless. With a quick twist of the pilot wheel he sent the car skidding around the corner, using undue haste, as it seemed, since they had two hours before them. A few minutes farther along the lights of the town had been left behind and the car was speeding swiftly westward on a country road paralleling the railway track; the road over which Smith had twice driven with the kidnapped Jibby.

"I'm still guessing," the passenger ventured, when the last of the railroad distance signals had flashed to the rear. And then: "What's the frantic hurry, Billy?"

Starbuck was running with the muffler cut out, but now he cut it in and the roar of the motor sank to a humming murmur.

"I thought so," he remarked, turning his head to listen. "You didn't notice that police whistle just as we were leaving the courthouse, did you?—nor the answers to it while we were dodging through the suburbs? Somebody has marked us down and passed the word, and now they're chasing us with a buzz-wagon. Don't you hear it?"

By this time Smith could hear the spluttering roar of the following car only too plainly.

"It's a big one," he commented. "You can't outrun it, Billy; and, besides, there is nowhere to run to in this direction."

Again Starbuck's reply translated itself into action. With a skillful touch of the controls he sent the car ahead at top speed, and for a matter of ten miles or more held a dazzling lead in the race through sheer good driving and an accurate knowledge of the road and its twistings and turnings. But the road would soon become a cart track in the mountains; there was no outlet to the north save by means of the railroad bridge at Little Butte station, and from somewhere up the valley and beyond the railroad bridge came the distance-softened whistle of a train.

Starbuck set a high mark for himself as a courageous driver of motor-cars when he came to the last of the three road crossings. Jerking the car around sharply at the instant of track-crossing, he headed straight out over the ties for the railroad bridge. It was a courting of death. To drive the bridge at racing speed was hazardous enough, but to drive it thus in the face of a downcoming train seemed nothing less than madness.

It was after the car had shot into the first of the three bridge spans that the pursuers pulled up and opened fire. Starbuck bent lower over his wheel, and Smith crouched for handholds. Far up the track on the north side of the river a headlight flashed in the darkness, and the hoarse blast of a locomotive, whistling for the bridge, echoed and re-echoed among the hills.

Starbuck drove for his life. With the bridge fairly crossed, he found himself on a high embankment; and the oncoming train was now less than half a mile away. Somewhere beyond the bridge approach there was a road; so much Starbuck could recall. If they could reach its crossing before the collision should come—

"They did reach it, by what seemed to Smith a margin of no more than the length of the heavy freight train which went jangling past them a scant second or so after the car had been wrenched aside into the obscure mesa road. They had gone a mile or more on the reverse leg of the long down-river detour before Starbuck cut the speed and turned the wheel over to his seat-mate.

"Take her a minute while I get the makings," he said, cry-lipped, feeling in his pockets for tobacco and the rice paper. Then he added: "Holy Solomon! I never wanted a smoke so bad in all my life!"

Smith's laugh was a chuckle.

"Gets next to you—after the fact—doesn't it? That's where we split. I had my scare before we hit the bridge, and it tasted like a mouthful of bitter aloes. Does this road take us back up the river?"

"It takes us twenty miles around through the Park and comes in at the head of Little creek. But we have plenty of time. You told Harding two hours, didn't you?"

"Yes; but I must have a few minutes at Hillcrest before we get action, Billy."

Starbuck took the wheel again and said nothing until the roundabout race had been fully run and he was easing the car down the last of the hills into the Little Creek road. There had been three-quarters of an hour of skillful driving over a bad road to come between Smith's remark and its reply, but Starbuck apparently made no account of the length of the interval.

"You're aiming to go and see Corry?" he asked, while the car was coasting to the hill bottom.

"Yes." With a sudden flick of the controls and a quick jamming of the brakes, Starbuck brought the car to a stand just as it came into the level road.

"We're men, to man here under the canopy, John; and Corry Baldwin hasn't got any brother," he offered gravely. "I'm backing you in this business fight for all I'm worth—for Dick Maxwell's sake and the colonel's, and maybe a little bit for the sake of my own ante of twenty thousand. And I'm ready to back you in this old-home scrap with all the money you'll need to make your fight. But when it comes to the little girl it's different. Have you any good and fair right to hunt up Corry Baldwin while things are shaping themselves up as they are?"

Smith met the shrewd inquisition fairly.

"Give it a name," he said shortly. "I will: I'll give it the one you gave it a while back. You said you were an outlaw, on two charges: embezzlement and assault. We'll let the assault go. But the other thing doesn't taste good."

"I didn't embezzle anything, Billy. I thought I made that plain."

"So you did. But you also made it plain that the home court would be likely to send you up for it, guilty or not guilty. And with a thing like that hanging over you, you see, I know Corry Baldwin, John. If you put it up to her tonight, and she happens to fall in with your side of it—what's what you're aiming to make her do—all hell won't keep her from going back home with you and seeing you through."

"Billy, I may never see her again. I said I wouldn't tell her—that I loved her too well to tell her. But now the final pinch has come, and I—"

"And that isn't that!" Starbuck went on relentlessly. "There's this Miss Rich-accres. Your hands ain't clean, John; not clean enough to let you go to Hillcrest tonight."

Smith groped in his pockets, found a cigar and lighted it.
"Pull out to the side of the road and we'll kill what time there is to kill right here," he directed soberly. And then: "What you say is right as right, Billy. Once more, I guess, I was loosed for the minute. Forget it; and while you're about it, forget Miss Richlander, too. Luckily for her, she is out of it—as far out of it as I am."

Home-Reading Course For Citizen-Soldiers

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved.)

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this course is merely introductory.

LESSON NO. 11.

PLAYING THE GAME

ed whether he wishes it or not, as a representative of the army to which he belongs. See to it that you conduct yourself in such a way to add your bit, not only to your own reputation, but to the reputation of the Army and of the country.

"Making Use of Spare Time
The use that a man makes of his time off duty is a good test of his character and of his capacity for growth. The good soldier is self-restrained. Don't spend your time repeating indecent stories. They add nothing whatever to your standing either with the men to whom you tell them or with your officers. Avoid boisterousness, vulgarity, and profanity.

This doesn't mean at all that you should keep yourself in the background or that you should fail to be a good "mixer." Let your personality stand out. Broaden your influence by every proper method. But use your personality and your influence to help the men in your own squad and company carry on their work and prepare as quickly as possible for the big task ahead of you.

Save some of your spare time for study. The manuals and drills regulations will grow more and more interesting to you as you become more familiar with your new duties. Memorize some of the important passages. Make yourself an authority on everything that pertains to company drill.

These are simple rules that will help any man, whether in or out of the Army, to make himself liked and respected. They are easy rules to observe. Follow them, and you will add greatly to your enjoyment of Army life and to your chances for promotion.

Your Monthly Pay

While the men in the National Army are serving at the call of duty and not for money, nevertheless every one will be paid more than enough to take care of all necessary expenses. These expenses are very slight. Clothing, food, and transportation are provided by the Government. In addition, the private soldier receives $30 per month while he is in the United States and $33 per month while he is abroad. Following is a table which shows pay for some of the higher non-commissioned ranks:

Rank	In United States	Abroad
Private	$30.00	$33.00
First-class private	32.00	36.00
Corporal	36.00	40.00
Sergeant	38.00	44.00
First sergeant	51.00	60.00

A man may allot such portions of his pay as he desires for the support of his family or relatives. He may deposit his savings with any quarter-master in sum of not less than $5. The quartermaster will furnish to each depositor a book giving record of his deposits. On the discharge of a soldier (but not before) the total amount of his deposits will be entered on his final statement and will be paid to him on presentation of his deposit book.

The rate of interest allowance is 4 per cent. This is one convenient method of saving money which many soldiers will desire to use. It is easier to save in the Army than it is in civil life.

Saving money is not only good in itself but is a sign that you are concentrating your time and energy on your military duties; that you are really playing the game.

The majority of the men who join the National Army are old enough and have sufficient good sense and self-control to conduct themselves properly, both on duty and off duty, without special advice or supervision. However, some suggestions may prove helpful.

Dinner Stories

An old negro was riding on the train and fell asleep with mouth wide open. A mischievous drummer came along and having a convenient supply of quinine in his pocket, he uncorked it and sifted it well on the old negro's palate and the roof of his tongue. The old negro, awakening, became much disturbed. He called for the conductor and asked: "Boss, is there a doctor on this here train?" "I don't know," said the conductor. "Are you sick?" "Yes, sir, I sure am sick. I sure am sick."

"What's the matter with you?" "I dunno, sir; but it tastes like I busted my gull."

The heavy advertiser of a certain ton entered the editorial offices of the daily paper, and in angry and disgusted tones delivered himself as follows:

"What's the matter with this sheet anyway? That was a fine mess you people made of my ad yesterday."

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the editor, anxiously.

"Read it and see," said the advertiser, and he thrust a copy of the paper into the editor's hands. The unhappy editor read:

"If you want to have a fit, wear Jinks' shoes."

The London police sergeant raised his eyes from the blotter as two policemen propelled the resisting victim before him.

"A German spy sir!" gasped the first patrolman.

"I'm an American, and can prove it," denied the victim.

"That's what he says, but here's the evidence," interrupted the second bobby, triumphantly producing a bulky hotel register from beneath his arm and pointing to an entry.

"V. Gates," written in a flowing hand, was the record that met the astonished sergeant's gaze.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

Barnum and Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth will certainly go down in history as the greatest all feature show that ever visited Janesville.

I thought that if the late Phineas T. Barnum and James A. Bailey could have been here to witness it, they certainly would have said, "It has fallen into the right hands, for Ringling Brothers are certainly keeping the quality up."

From the time the Oriental Pageant, which opened up the show until the race was run, every act seemed to be as good as, or better than the other, and the verdict of the people, who were fortunate enough to attend, was of the same opinion. "That it was the best circus that ever visited Janesville."

Barnum and Bailey spent more than half of a century in building up the great show, and all during this time it was the pride of their lives, to think that when they passed over the divide, that the show should fall into the hands of a man who would keep on building it up and making it of a higher standard is gratifying to Ringling Brothers as well as to the millions of people who visit the circus every year.

While the fear of the old timers are still with the show, all now and competent men are kept in every department. On account of it being impossible to keep working men enough to put up and take down the apparatus, there are times when every one around the show, from the front door to the dressing rooms, who must put their shoulders to the wheel, and even do much more than is expected of them, in order to get the show up and give two performances each day.

When the show pulled into Janesville, they were late, and being short of workmen, to the number of nearly one hundred, it was most marvelous that they got up in good shape all except the menagerie, and gave Janesville patrons the best circus that they ever looked at.

I had a long visit with Charles Hutchinson, the general Treasurer of the show, who by the way, is a nephew of the late James A. Bailey. For many years Mr. Hutchinson has been in charge of the show, and he is the winter quarter of the show.

I told Mr. Hutchinson that I only recalled two places of interest, where I took a look at thirty-five years ago on my first visit to Bridgeport. One of the homes was of the late Phineas T. Barnum, which stood on a beautiful rise of ground, something like one-half or three-fourths of a mile from the city, and the home of Elias Howe, who was one of the first inventors of sewing machines, and had made millions out of the business.

Three or four times were the only ones that were of any special interest to me.

Mr. Hutchinson smiled and said, "And later I bought the Old House, some years ago, and have resided there ever since." Mr. Warner, the millionaire cigar manufacturer, bought the Barnum home and still resides there.

At the death of Mr. Barnum, the Trust Company at Hartford, Connecticut, was named as executor of the will, and it was in the hands of the company that the estate was settled, and the entire management of the estate was left to them. There were originally about sixty acres in the old homestead.

When the Remington Arms Company located their plant there, it gave Bridgeport a nominal boom, and the first year after their location there, the city grew to 100,000. This made the acres of the Barnum homestead valuable. It was then that the ground, something like fifty acres, was platted and sold into lots.

Mr. Hutchinson said, "Dave, if you were to go back to Bridgeport, Connecticut today, you would need a guide to find either the Barnum homestead, or the Howe homestead, where I live."

Charles Hutchinson has been with the circus for many years and when not traveling on the road, he has charge of the great show, and its remodeling in its winter quarters at Bridgeport.

Mr. Hutchinson knows as much or more about the show, than any one connected with it, for he was assistant manager for his uncle, James A. Bailey for many years before his death.

I had a long visit with Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Sibson, who own the great attraction of seven people, who are sawing high in the air, from one part of the canvas to the other, turning double somersaults.

Mr. Sibson, back in the 80's, was one of the famous Sibson family, which Adam Forepaugh brought to this country from England. After many years the act was known as the "Siegist and Sibson Aerials," and has been the highest class of any in the country.

But, Todd Siegist, his partner, was taken sick last winter with Bright's disease, and has not been able to work this summer. Eddie Sibson carries on the act, as well as his partner's share of the money. It is fair to say that not many partners in any kind of business, look after their old business friends as Mr. and Mrs. Sibson are doing. For as long as Siegist lives, he will know that he has share of the proceeds.

When the net circus visits Janesville, and undertakes to step into the shoes that the Barnum & Bailey show left here, they will be hard ones to fill.

The show left Janesville on time, over the Northwestern road, for Aurora, Illinois, where they showed on Wednesday. From there they went to South Bend, Indiana, and after making a dozen other towns, they will leave for Chicago on September 1st, and return to Janesville on September 5th, which is the last stand on the route.

When the show leaves, the Oriental Pageant, which opened the show, was the finest ever seen with any circus, and cost many thousands of dollars more than any other show.

When the Great Oriental Pageant was over, and the last notes of the music had died away, I heard a lady sitting next to me say to one of her friends, "That alone is well worth the price of admission."

When the great band backed up behind the wonderful pipe organ, the snappy work, which the equestrian band of the show put on the acts, all did their part to give the audience a performance that was faultless.
